

Published by the Free Publishing Company.

TUESDAY EVENING, NOV. 4.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE EVENING WORLD

(Including Postage)

PER MONTH $3.00

PER YEAR $33.00

VOL. 21, No. 10,000

Entered at the Post-Office at New York as second class matter.

BRANCH OFFICES:

WORLD UPTOWN OFFICE—1267 Broadway, between 31st and 32nd sts., New York.

BROOKLYN—339 Fulton St., HARLEM—

New Department, 180 East 125th St.,

Admission at 237 East 115th St.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—LEADER BUILDING,

112 South 9th St., WASHINGTON—610

14th St.

LONDON OFFICE—32 CECIL STREET, TRAFAL-

GAR SQUARE.

FREE

MESSANGER

SERVICE.

EVERY OFFICE OF THE

METROPOLITAN TELEGRAPH COMPANY

IS AUTHORIZED TO ACCEPT

"WANT" ADVERTISEMENTS

FOR

THE WORLD.

EVERY METROPOLITAN CALL BOY CAN BE used for this purpose, and no charge will be made for messenger service.

ALL MESSENGER BOYS

OF THE METROPOLITAN COMPANY ARE provided with Rate Cards and will take

"WORLD" ADS. AT OFFICE RATES.

LOCATION OF MESSENGER OFFICES:

30 New York, 45 Broadway, 175 W. 23d St.,

10 Wall St., 434 Broadway, 202 Fifth Ave.,

10 Pine St., 443 Broadway, 137 Fifth Ave.,

63 Fulton St., 104 Broadway, 112 1/2 Ave. C,

7 Murray St., 1209 Broadway, 108 1/2 Ave. C,

129 Broadway, 17 University Place, 165 Madison Ave.,

awaiting trial. He bore a marked resemblance to NERSE.

Whatever may be thought of the detective's meager power, it is a satisfaction to know that an innocent man has not paid the penalty of a criminal's evil deed.

MISS CAROLINE STOKES PHILIPS has purchased a lot in Ansonia, Conn., on which she will erect a handsome public library.

It will be endowed sufficiently to make the purchase of books and everything needed for its full equipment an assured thing.

Miss PHILIPS's family has always had great public interests in Ansonia. Such a spirit of public benevolence is highly commendable and is one of the best of examples.

CHARLES PRATTE got disgusted with life and took several drinks and attempted to take his life yesterday. He was unsuccessful in the second attempt, being a greater expert at drinking than at suicide. When he found that he had cut his throat a little he rushed to the police station and told of his attempt. Suicide is not bravery, but it requires some determination. One ought to fully make up his mind to it before attempting it.

A steer had an outing the other day in Williamsburg, and his triumphal progress was marked by the arrival of hospital ambulances. There was no sense of gallantry in the brute for he bowed over a dear old lady who was doing him no harm whatever. He was eventually lassoed.

If Dr. HOWARD CHURCH's charge that a police captain defied $70,000 in one year as a blackmailing crook be true, how mad the other captains must be!

The barkeepers of New York City would like to have election day come once a week at least. Reform in politics has not yet touched the tap-rooms.

Somebody has dug up a pot containing $5,000 in gold. What luck some people have!

SPOTLIGHTS.

When a belle dies that do not tell her as such on her tombstone. It would ring the hearts of her friends.

When Patti takes to leaving promissory notes she will be taken for her fair value, perhaps.

When it is question of a stocking, the best of men may put his foot in it.

Baby McKee's nurse is a constant threat to him. Miss Katie Brock will induce this statement.

A capital match, the minister said, as the couple before him stood.

The terrible war was said to have been waged—The glancing girl and the dodo.

A burglar hates to cross a creek as badly as a cat does.

One remedy for consumption is to keep away everything that can be consumed.

It seemed fit for such a leader as McCay, the West Virginia ruler, to be a heavily loaded article at a poor man's bit by a piece of flying rock, was not temperate of speech would be said the blasted rock hurt him.

People who are not fond of politics in the pulpit think a mouth's salary should be looked for certain preachers in this town.

WORLDLINGS.

The interesting information is reconfirmed that Blanche Willis Howard (now Mrs. Toulon), the authoress, has a different finger-ring on every day in the year.

Many people consider the Emperor of Austria the richest man in Europe. At any rate, his wealth is enormous, and in his charities he is most munificent. Very recently he paid out from his own pocket the sum of $200,000 for the relief of the sufferers from the inundation.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

THE WAYS OF WOMAN FAIR.

Fads, Fancies and Fashions That Delight the Gentler Sex.

Factory Girls Who Earn But Fifty Cents a Day—The Smart, Close-Fitting Street Gown—Increasing Trade in Cast-Off Garments.

Factory girls in the East End of London receive wages varying from 30 cents to $1.50 a week. No pitiable is their social condition, that in Gatehead the United Friendly Society has organized them into a "Working Girls' Club" for the simple purpose of keeping them off the streets at night and giving them enough tea and biscuits to keep them alive. The club-room is open from candle-light till midnight, and games, recitations and music brighten the sores of the unfortunate young women, many of whom come from lodgings into which a civilized woman would not have the moral courage to venture.

A steer had an outing the other day in Williamsburg, and his triumphal progress was marked by the arrival of hospital ambulances. There was no sense of gallantry in the brute for he bowed over a dear old lady who was doing him no harm whatever. He was eventually lassoed.

If Dr. HOWARD CHURCH's charge that a police captain defied $70,000 in one year as a blackmailing crook be true, how mad the other captains must be!

The barkeepers of New York City would like to have election day come once a week at least. Reform in politics has not yet touched the tap-rooms.

Somebody has dug up a pot containing $5,000 in gold. What luck some people have!

When a belle dies that do not tell her as such on her tombstone. It would ring the hearts of her friends.

When Patti takes to leaving promissory notes she will be taken for her fair value, perhaps.

When it is question of a stocking, the best of men may put his foot in it.

Baby McKee's nurse is a constant threat to him. Miss Katie Brock will induce this statement.

A capital match, the minister said, as the couple before him stood.

The terrible war was said to have been waged—The glancing girl and the dodo.

A burglar hates to cross a creek as badly as a cat does.

One remedy for consumption is to keep away everything that can be consumed.

It seemed fit for such a leader as McCay, the West Virginia ruler, to be a heavily loaded article at a poor man's bit by a piece of flying rock, was not temperate of speech would be said the blasted rock hurt him.

People who are not fond of politics in the pulpit think a mouth's salary should be looked for certain preachers in this town.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set in existence, except the one in the Japanese treasury, and is worth thousands of dollars.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is fond of smoking, and is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life.

One of the most valuable of the curiosities in the National Museum at Washington is the set of Japanese gold coins in the Grant collection. It is the only complete set